

SUFFRAGETTE LOSES FIGHT IN COURT AFTER DISTURBING MR. WILSON

Maud Malone, Militant Arguer,
Is Found Guilty, but Sentence Is Suspended.

Maud Malone, militant suffragette, had the faith which is in her subject to the ordeal of the law in Special Sessions in Brooklyn this afternoon. Justice Parker, Fleming and Collins sat in judgment to know whether her interruption of the Wilson and Marshall meeting at the Academy of Music, Oct. 19, was of a sort to be called a "disturbance of a public meeting."

Miss Malone approached the ordeal with ill concealed eagerness. She sent out notices, yesterday, to all the newspapers and to many persons, calling attention to the trial as the occasion of a real test of the fairness of man-made law in dealing with woman seeking equal justice and privilege.

The costume of the accused brought murmurs of admiration from the twenty or thirty female persons who had accepted Miss Malone's invitations. So far as a mere man could see, she wore a happy black velvet hat, an embroidered shirt waist and a switchy brown skirt of the very latest cut.

MADE DISTURBANCE IN THE BALCONY.

Herbert Swain, the superintendent of the Academy of Music, testified he was in his office and word came to him there on the night of the Wilson meeting that there was trouble upstairs. He went up and saw a woman standing in the gallery with many other persons about her, most of them women, yelling "shut up!" and "put her out!"

Swain said he went to the balcony and told Miss Malone she must be quiet or leave. He heard her say nothing except: "Well, Mr. Wilson, I want to know." She was waving her arms violently.

"I cautioned the ushers not to touch her, and told her to be quiet or to leave," he testified. "She came out to the aisle. Then Magistrate Kemper came along and told her she must be arrested unless she was quiet. Somebody opened the door of a fire-escape and she was pushed out. That is all I know."

BLIND GET YEARLY DOLE.

Five hundred and forty-eight poor, sightless men and women were led today through "Misery Lane" in their annual pilgrimage to the Department of Charities at the foot of East Twenty-sixth street to receive their annual gift of cash from the State. On the faces of the blind were smiles, for they were about to receive $48 in cash each, the being the apportionment of the $23,000 appropriation for this purpose.

TWO POLICEMEN FALL EIGHT FEET INTO TRAP HUNTING FOR BURGLARS

Scare Each Other in Dark
Room, Then Fall Through Trapdoor.

Two policemen of Williamsburg captured themselves while hunting for burglars early this morning. Sergeant Ahlers and Patrolman Martin of the Clymer street station were walking along Harrison avenue near Bartlett street trying the doors in the neighborhood. At Teutonia Hall they found the door leading into the manager's private office open.

The two were suspicious and stepped into an apartment which was formerly used as a bar. It was dark and they couldn't find the electric switchboard. They lit matches and talked in whispers. Suddenly Ahlers gave a yell. It was an unearthly sound and Martin dropped all his matches and shook as if he had the palsy. He managed to pick up a match and by its ghastly flicker made out only vague shadows on the walls. His superior officer had vanished.

He called aloud the name of the sergeant. A faint groan reached him. A voice said: "I'm down here!" Martin shuffled around the room, groping his way cautiously. He was in the act of lighting his twentieth match when the light went out and he felt himself going through space. Down, down he went and landed with a yell and a thud on solid ground. Both men had gone through an open trap-door and had fallen about eight feet.

After congratulatory messages had been exchanged the two men tried to get out. They couldn't jump back again, and examination showed that all exits were barred. Then they began to shout for help. Charles Hartman, an ice cream vendor, passing along Harrison avenue, was nearly frightened out of his wits by the yell. Then he began an investigation and discovered the self-captured policemen.

He notified the Clymer street station, half a mile away, and three men were sent out on the run. Meanwhile Martin had borrowed a ladder from a nearby stable and the two policemen were again above ground when their relief arrived. Beyond a number of bruises and shock the rescued men said they were all right.

VICTIMS OF WIRETAPPERS IDENTIFY MEN IN COURT.

The seven men under arrest in the wholesale wire-tapping swindle had another session before Magistrate Murphy in the West Side Police Court this afternoon. During the brief hearing four of the seven—Charles Goudorf, Joe Eaton, Charles Bradford and John Kay—were positively identified by some of their alleged victims. At the request of the District Attorney the case was further adjourned until Nov. 19. "Paper Collar Joe" Chapowsky protested.

The first identification of the prisoners was made by J. W. Powell of Wilmington, S. C., who was trimmed for $3,000 on Sept. 12 last. Powell positively identified Charles Goudorf, Joe Eaton, Simon Jones of Pittsburgh picked out Charles Bradford, and Kirby C. Sillbury, whose complaint brought about the arrest of the gang, pointed out Joe Eaton and Charles Goudorf. The three who were not identified were Charles Carbonell, James McDonald and Fred Goudorf. All, with the exception of McDonald, were held in $20,000 bail each, which was furnished. McDonald was released in $2,500 bail.

CLUBBED AND STONED, THEN BIT HIS HORSE, GIOVANI'S SO KIND

Swore in Court He Was Kind to Animal When Women
Told of Cruelty.

Three women looked in round-eyed amazement at Giovanni Napolitano in Harlem Police Court this afternoon as he swore by the memory of his mother, by the Holy Trinity and all the Apostles and Disciples that the women were liars. They had just testified to shocking brutality exercised by Giovanni Napolitano upon one horse of a team he has been using in removing rock from the grounds of a new building on the grounds of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine at One Hundred and Tenth street and Amsterdam avenue.

Giovanni, a handsome young fellow with flashing black eyes, was held in $500 bail for trial in the Court of General Sessions. The women, Mrs. Marie E. Nye and Mrs. Grace Gilhooly of No. 15 Gramercy park, and Mrs. Mary Smyser, of No. 200 Cathedral Parkway, promised to appear against him when he is placed on trial.

Mrs. Nye and Mrs. Gilhooly were seated in an automobile at One Hundred and Tenth street and Amsterdam avenue this afternoon when their attention was attracted by the shouts of a man nearby. They saw Napolitano hit a horse attached to a truck load of stone a blow over the head with a club that felled the animal to its knees.

The women jumped from the car and ran toward the driver. He struck the horse again and again. Then, as the woman approached him, he leaped on the animal and bit it in the neck until the blood appeared. Finally he picked up a stone weighing thirty pounds and bounced it off the horse's head.

By that time a threatening crowd spoiled Giovanni's pastime. Policemen Buechler appeared and arrested the driver on complaint of the women, who followed the prisoner to Harlem Police Court and told their stories.
